Concert Party News

The BMC Concert Party has maintained its proud attendance record for 2016 with around 20 people attending each Monday evening in Hut 44. Several of the Concert Party members performed with the Heritage Band at the Ball in Parramatta Town Hall on Saturday 21 May 2016, and at the picnic the following day.

There have been many pleasing reports from people who were in the audience attending the recent Senior Citizens gig at Winston Hills Shopping Centre. The Concert Party will be performing once again at the Ermington Dance in July and at Dalmar Homes Carlingford on Sunday 27 November 2016.

All members have been looking forward to the Morisset Bush Music Sessions in late May 2016.

Bring your friends along for an enjoyable night of dancing.

The recent 2016 'Regency to Ragtime' Heritage Ball, held at Parramatta Town Hall, was a wonderful night of music and dancing. An enormous 'Thank You' to Wendy Richmond and her amazing team who created a gastronomic delight! Also many 'Thanks' to Dave Johnson and the Heritage Ensemble for the enchanting music. The Recovery Picnic was held at Australiana Village Wilberforce and was a wonderfully relaxing day enjoyed by everyone. Well done and thank you to everyone involved for all your hard work in making the weekend so amazing.

The inaugural BMC 'Music at Morisset' is on track to be an enjoyable and amazing weekend. Stay tuned in the next issue of MW for reports and pictures.

It is with a sad heart that we recently said farewell to both Greg Strutt and Noel May. Both will be sorely missed and we extend to their families our sincere condolences.

Baerami Bush Dance Report

We attended the Baerami Bush Dance on Saturday Night & had the most wonderful night dancing. The people were a great crowd with lots of children thoroughly enjoying themselves as well as the adults. We danced well into the night until we ran out of dancers.

We camped overnight near the hall which was very enjoyable as well.

My sister Shirley & friend came to meet up with us from Mudgee & spent the weekend. She also thoroughly enjoyed the time there.

The next morning we were at the hall ready to go on the bush walk at 8:30am.

We walked to the top of the mountain with the other people who were up to it after dancing all night.

When we arrived back at the hall after the bush walk the beautiful sound of the Bush Band was coming from the hall. The music was echoing across the camp ground making a most magical atmosphere.

We stayed in the hall until the final note was played later that afternoon.

What a wonderful weekend I wish they were held more often..

Heritage Ball Picnic

Sunday sun shone through bush back-burning smoke, kept moving into our respiratory systems by gentle breezes, to welcome all Ball-recovery & other picnickers at Pioneer Village Wilberforce on 22 May 2016. Certainly it was a picnic with a 'smoked-flavour', reminiscent of a wood-fired back-yard BBQ when open fires were permissible & modern gas BBQ's weren't the 'rage'.

A long table was already 'set' by Wendy Richmond, when 2 BMC committee members arrived at 10.30am. just near the bush-stage at the hill-top location. A forward 'scout' dispatched from the car park found her 'claimed' site.

After the longest picnic lunch many would have attended (due to continual arrivals), this proximity provided the dance floor for the more energetic, to mount children's horses-headed poles & gallop in regulated dance formation to the bush musicians playing. Passer-bys did enjoy sharing some of their time with us, to the extent that we 'stage-dressed' some overseas visitors with Aussie-gear, before complying with their photographic request.

The more weary departed, leaving a good contingent to linger into the late shading & cooling afternoon, with the changed breeze direction out of the North wafting the musical sounds to those many picnickers further down on the flats, enjoying the sun's late rays.

Book Review

Araluen: a history through photographs c 1840-2000, Braidwood and District Historical Society Inc, 2014, $25.00

This book gives a portrait of what it was like growing up, living and working in the Araluen area and surrounding districts. The early settlers had to put up with a lot of hardship with little of the pleasures experienced by the larger regional areas or cities. The gold mining which attracted people to the area is highlighted by the many photographs of gold mining activities ranging from panning to the dredging for gold. Photos of the local public and Roman Catholic schools reveal diversity of school wear. A photo of people wearing their Sunday best to church reflects times past compared to today where no one wears their Sunday best and even Anglican priests often do not wear clerical garments during church services.

Recreational activities such as lodges, clubs and sporting activities are covered with emphasis on the male of the species.

Folk music is featured in the pages on musicians playing traditional instruments together with a photo of John Meredith playing his button accordion. Mention is made of the Bush Music Club visiting in the 1960s and their playing attracted a big crowd. Although not listed on the title page, BMC life member, Chris Woodland was a prime initiator of this publication having supplied most of the research, photos and text for the publication. His Araluen photographic compilation numbers about 300 images, having collected them over several decades.

Dorothea Mackellar's poem My Country with its words: "Of droughts and flooding rains" is certainly evident in the Araluen district and surrounding areas. Included in the text are a number of poems such as Snooks by Alby Matthews, Dames of the Deua by JH Sturgiss, Deua River Woman by Myrtle Collett (nee Davis) and The Valley by Peter P Green.

This title is a testament to the pioneer folk who settled the Araluen district and is a book worth viewing to wonder at the life that once was and how their legacy lives on in the present generation. Another recollection of the Araluen area I have encountered is one about Iree McCarron whose recollection Back of Bendethera was published in Martin McAdoo's When grandma was just a girl, Sydney, Lansdowne Press, 1983. John Meredith's sisters are featured on the title page of Martin McAdoo's book.

2016 National Folk Festival Report

2016 was a festival of memories and tributes mixed with confidence for the future of folk and Nationals.

Young people were everywhere, performing, singing or busking as were those with greyer hair or other signs of many years attendance at folk festivals. The Bush Music Club should be commended on the special workshops to encourage youthful participation. Moving between the Saplings and the lunchtime sessions kept Helen and Tony Romeo very busy and others too. Chris Woodland, who assisted Dennis and Mem Taberner run the Dennis O'Keeffe lunchtime Australian songs session, said it was one of the best Nationals ever. Among the sizeable gathering of many familiar faces, it was good to see long time BMC members, Ann and Frank Maher with their daughters Helen and Monica enjoying these sessions.

Near the front entrance it was good to see the traditions of Australia's First Peoples presenting aspects of their culture and hear Col Hardy at the National Library. As always the Folklore Conference had some very informative papers. I always learn so much at the Conference and it is always well attended by BMC people. Sandra Nixon had done a very thorough piece of research into the Editors, office bearers and illustrators of the early volumes of 'Singabout'. Chris Woodland presented an insight into his book on Araluen, with some historical photographs.

There were a number of concerts commemorating the humble beginnings from the Melbourne mob in 1967. The program from 2016 had hundreds of performers from every state. Excellent research with recollection of events, programs of the first festival and profiles of people were presented by Phyl Lobl, Danny Spooner and Margaret Roadknight. Colleen Z. Burke organised a commemorative Declan Affley concert. Jeannie Lewis managed to continue her moving rendition of Woody Guthrie's Deportee in spite of the Brass band marching outside the beautiful Speigel Zelt. As one of those from the '67 folk festival, this was not the first time Jeannie had sung unaccompanied and without microphones.

It was wonderful to hear a number of the original performers or younger performers carrying on the traditions.

Jason and Chloe Roweth along with their brilliant band gave a passionate performance including songs and poems with memories of John Dengate. Another themed concert prepared with passion and talent was the moving presentation of The Easter Rising, Ireland 1916. The Fettleers from NT gave an informative concert of songs and stories of the Rails and Planes of the Top End. Peter Mace always has a strong impact with his bush poetry and to represent the young people, Megan Roweth did a very good recital of Paterson's Walgett Town, at the Poet's Breakfast. Sydney Morris dancers and others from every state including some from across the ditch added to the carnival atmosphere, and also ran Morris for Kids.

A special tribute to Peter Ellis brought nostalgic memories of a true gentle man of dance heritage and the people who shared their experience of traditional music and dance. I recall a discussion with Peter, some years ago after we did the Pride of Erin, when he said you Sydney BMC people often seem to have your own versions, and we thought we were the traditionalists! However, doing the Pride of Erin with Roger Holmes from Queensland, I realized they dance another version...the wonders of folk traditions...

There were plenty of opportunities to join singing sessions, dancing and reciting, but it would be impossible to see everything. I know I missed some great performances.

There were also a number of brilliant overseas visitors who love the authenticity and variety of the National. Pam Merrigan and Organisers did a wonderful job blending them all into the National Program which is so much larger than the one held fifty years ago.

Pennant Hills Dance Activities

Pennant Hills Community Centre: (lower, air-conditioned hall)

During May the BMC dance workshop participants learned some of the Parramatta Heritage Ball dances taught by Wendy and Don Richmond. The workshops were good fun and very useful preparation for the ball. Our thanks to Wendy and Don for giving their time to our group.

We have a full programme of dancing coming up. On 6th June we will be practicing the dances for the Central Coast dance to be held on Saturday 11th June where the JH Dance Band will be playing in their unique style.

On 13th June there will be no workshop (public holiday). However there will be a whole (long) weekend of dancing at Bundanoon with the annual "DanceFest" and the Central Coast dancers will be holding their regular monthly dance on the Saturday evening, so there is plenty of choice.

The July Beecroft dance (2nd July at the Beecroft Community Hall) will be a celebration of 20 years of the Currawong Bush Band with many previous and current musicians playing. This will be a very special night featuring many of their favourite dances. One of the highlights will be the "Woylie Waltz", a prize winning dance written in 2000 by Amanda Daly with dedicated music by Tony Stuart, both "Currawongs" at that time. An evening not to be missed.

We will be holding some practice workshops at Pennant Hills for the Currawong dance so if you're not sure of the "Woylie Waltz" (or any of the others) come and learn them. In July we will have our annual "birthday" party (the workshop's birthday that is) and will have a few practice nights as well. If you were one of the early members of the Pennant Hills workshops why not join us? Founding members are especially welcome. See you at Pennant Hills!

Remember Us? by Kevin Rennie 2015

Time and loneliness of a WW1 Memorial Nimbin NSW, 11 11 2015

Our nights are long, the days drag on.
Yes, we've been here so very long.
And that rain keeps tumblin' down.

Our names are here for all to see
Just look along and you'll see me
And that rain keeps tumblin' down

There's Pete and Dave and Robert and John
So many lads the roll is long
And that rain keeps tumblin' down

Our time was brief in history
We gave our future's so you'd be free
And that rain keeps tumblin' down

Should you pass-by don't walk away
Please stop awhile and say g'day
And that rain will drift away

Refrain: And that rain will drift away

JUNE 2016

REFRESHING MEMORIES

Much of the material produced in the folk scene is written about current events and people and as such can be rather transient unless it gets updated regularly. John Den-gate sometimes added verses or made revisions to his political songs, mostly parodies of existing songs, as new events added to the story. The current political stoushes would have been a rich source of material for his pen were he still here. Dale has stepped into his shoes and updated Take Your Bulldozers for a very current issue.

Parodies can sometimes be as memorable as the original words. For those who have heard it done a few times it is difficult to hear Long way to Tipperary without remembering Long way to Cunnamulla. Some of the more significant of these songs are periodically revisited to remind us of past events that are at risk of being forgotten or ignored, often to our detriment. As George Santayana said, "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it."

Fortunately, the folk scene is more than one person and others are mining the rich stream of material for their own commentary on the events and the people behind them.

Among her many activities, Phyl Lobl still gets inspired to put pen to paper and record the personalities so prominent in Australia and their activities, both good and bad.

As a slight contrast Kevin Rennie has produced a new piece inspired by a visit to the War Memorial in Nimbin on Remembrance Day - another way to remember the past.

OLD (CLIVE) PALMER SONG

Phyl Lobl

Tune Trad : 'Old Palmer Song', '10,000 miles Away'

Palmer is a name you know, mining is his game and so. G C
Nickel, Iron, dusty coal he would mine it all, Heigh Ho, C G D7
It's Min-er-al-o-gy and not Bi-ol-o-gy G C
That won the day, so he made hay and pocketed it with glee.. C G D7 G

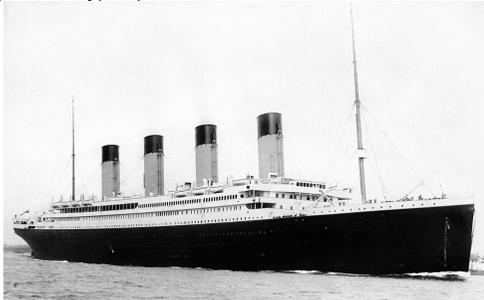

It blew the mind Heigh Ho when Palmer joined the show,
The one they hold down south my boys where they vote yes or no.
So let the music play, come out on voting day,
You have the clout so vote them out from a thousand miles away.

Golf Courses he has got (a lot), but a good sport he is not, (is not)
If a negative word from you is heard he'll sue you on the spot, (by Got)
His Dinosaurs might roar but he won't be making more,
They'll join the ranks of crooked banks and hidden cash off-shore.

The massive boat he built was mortgaged to the hilt,
He filled it's funnels full of cash like rivers fill with silt,
Legal and watertight still doesn't make it right,
The boat went down with Palmer's crown and no ice-berg in sight.

The lodge he never made, though lots of cash he paid
But Mr Rabbit's plan was foiled by Clive as a barricade,
It blew the mind again, when his parade was hit with rain,
He lost his clout on the way out while going down the drain.

I hope he pays the dues to workers he would use,
But glad he ruffled Liberal minds and helped the voters choose
To think about their vote and note, we can change a rule,
Democracy we might yet see 'cause Clive was not all fool.

Take Your Bulldozers .. c. John Dengate 1969

2016 UPDATE. Dale Dengate

You can take your bulldozers from under our noses
We're not near as gutless as Rob Stokes supposes. #
Build your M5 'way a bloody sight less way
And take your bulldozers away.

Alternatives:

Duncan supposes – Duncan Gay
Mad Mike supposes – Mike Baird

Chorus:

West Connex to the devil...swallow your drivel and shovel your gravel
Bring back Green bans forever, we'll keep your bulldozers away.

2. You can take your bulldozers to Pharaoh and Moses
You'll find demolition is no bed of roses.
We're not going to live with your West Connex motorway,
Take your bulldozers away.

Chorus

3, You can tell your authorities that their priorities
Don't meet the needs of the urban majority,
Hands off that heritage, spare our community .
Take your bulldozers away.

Coda:

Don't build your WestConnex; it's a great load of bollocks,*
And take your bulldozers away.

* Thanks to Martin Pearson

John Den-gate sometimes added verses or made revisions to his political songs, mostly parodies of existing songs, as new events added to the story. The current political stoushes would have been a rich source of material for his pen were he still here. Dale has stepped into his shoes and updated Take Your Bulldozers for a very current issue.

Parodies can sometimes be as memorable as the original words. For those who have heard it done a few times it is difficult to hear Long way to Tipperary without remembering Long way to Cunnamulla. Some of the more significant of these songs are periodically revisited to remind us of past events that are at risk of being forgotten or ignored, often to our detriment. As George Santayana said, "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it."

Fortunately, the folk scene is more than one person and others are mining the rich stream of material for their own commentary on the events and the people behind them.

Among her many activities, Phyl Lobl still gets inspired to put pen to paper and record the personalities so prominent in Australia and their activities, both good and bad.

As a slight contrast Kevin Rennie has produced a new piece inspired by a visit to the War Memorial in Nimbin on Remembrance Day - another way to remember the past.

OLD (CLIVE) PALMER SONG

Phyl Lobl

Tune Trad : 'Old Palmer Song', '10,000 miles Away'

Palmer is a name you know, mining is his game and so. G C
Nickel, Iron, dusty coal he would mine it all, Heigh Ho, C G D7
It's Min-er-al-o-gy and not Bi-ol-o-gy G C
That won the day, so he made hay and pocketed it with glee.. C G D7 G

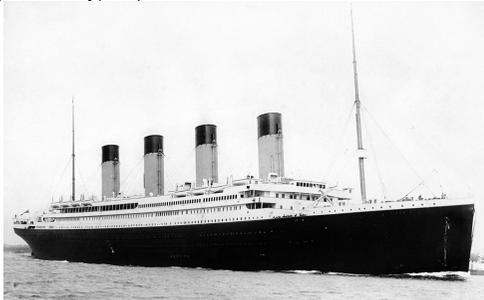

It blew the mind Heigh Ho when Palmer joined the show,
The one they hold down south my boys where they vote yes or no.
So let the music play, come out on voting day,
You have the clout so vote them out from a thousand miles away.

Golf Courses he has got (a lot), but a good sport he is not, (is not)
If a negative word from you is heard he'll sue you on the spot, (by Got)
His Dinosaurs might roar but he won't be making more,
They'll join the ranks of crooked banks and hidden cash off-shore.

The massive boat he built was mortgaged to the hilt,
He filled it's funnels full of cash like rivers fill with silt,
Legal and watertight still doesn't make it right,
The boat went down with Palmer's crown and no ice-berg in sight.

The lodge he never made, though lots of cash he paid
But Mr Rabbit's plan was foiled by Clive as a barricade,
It blew the mind again, when his parade was hit with rain,
He lost his clout on the way out while going down the drain.

I hope he pays the dues to workers he would use,
But glad he ruffled Liberal minds and helped the voters choose
To think about their vote and note, we can change a rule,
Democracy we might yet see 'cause Clive was not all fool.

Take Your Bulldozers .. c. John Dengate 1969

2016 UPDATE. Dale Dengate

You can take your bulldozers from under our noses
We're not near as gutless as Rob Stokes supposes. #
Build your M5 'way a bloody sight less way
And take your bulldozers away.

Alternatives:

Duncan supposes – Duncan Gay
Mad Mike supposes – Mike Baird

Chorus:

West Connex to the devil...swallow your drivel and shovel your gravel
Bring back Green bans forever, we'll keep your bulldozers away.

2. You can take your bulldozers to Pharaoh and Moses
You'll find demolition is no bed of roses.
We're not going to live with your West Connex motorway,
Take your bulldozers away.

Chorus

3, You can tell your authorities that their priorities
Don't meet the needs of the urban majority,
Hands off that heritage, spare our community .
Take your bulldozers away.

Coda:

Don't build your WestConnex; it's a great load of bollocks,*
And take your bulldozers away.

* Thanks to Martin Pearson

Chorus....
